My Brothers and Sisters in the Risen Lord,

All of us, at one time or another, have imagined this compelling scene: As the moon rose to light their path, a young couple, perhaps a very young couple, are journeying far from home to find a place of safety to await the birth of their first child. Both the dark night and their fears surround them, but Mary and Joseph bravely venture forth, with Mary riding on a donkey and her husband walking beside her. With Mary in some distress, they stop in a town called Bethlehem, where this child, this wondrous child, so long awaited, is born in a lowly stable amid the sights and sounds of its sparse setting. It's not what one would have expected as the proper atmosphere for the birth of the Savior of the world, but it was the perfect location for God to send His son—to change hearts and lives, as Jesus did while on earth and until He comes again.

Yes, Jesus Christ, Prince of Peace, is God's most extraordinary gift to the world and in whom the great covenant between God and His people was and is fulfilled. He brought us out of the darkness and into His light, and if we truly internalize this moment, we realize the significance and power of our faith in his birth, life, death, and resurrection, and through God's munificence, our lives can be transformed beyond imagination and toward our ultimate salvation. This little child captures our hope, our promise, and our unlimited capacity for love.

In 1868, American author Phillip Brooks composed a beautiful, yet simple poem to mark the birth of our Lord. His words were later set to music as a carol and have been a part of our Christmas celebration for over 100 years. Today, his words remain especially poignant:

O little town of Bethlehem, how still we see thee lie.

Yet in thy dark streets shineth, the everlasting light,

The hopes and fears of all the years are met in thee tonight.

For Christ is born of Mary, and gathered all above

While mortals sleep, the angels keep, their watch of wondering love.

Oh morning stars together, proclaim thy holy birth.

And praises sing to God the king, and peace to men on earth.

This Christmas season will soon be a lovely memory, but the essence of its meaning can and should remain alive within us. May our Lord Jesus Christ continue to shine His light on your lives on this special day and always. Merry Christmas, my dear friends...

Yours in Christ,
Father Rudy
